

A Transformational Home for Maryland Entrepreneurs

LURN CENTER • ROCKVILLE, MD

ABOUT THE PROPERTY & FEATURES

The Lurn Center is a new $3.5 million, 26,000-square-foot coworking and entrepreneurial learning space in Rockville, MD.

Lurn Center is the brainchild of University of Maryland, Baltimore County and University of Maryland, College Park alumnus Anik Singal. He is the founder and CEO of Lurn Inc., an e-learning platform aimed at helping train and educate entrepreneurs working to grow their own businesses.

The Lurn Center collaborated with Casaplex on design and installation, and features lecture-style classrooms, huddle and conference rooms, private offices, coworking desks, a video and audio studio, an event space, arcade, and even a nap room. For members of the community that can't make it to the Lurn Center for live events, Casaplex made it possible for four rooms to simultaneously stream their training to the internet to be viewable live on Facebook, YouTube, and more.

Casaplex designed and installed a simple control system to control the entire facility from a single interface, whether on an in-wall touchpanel or a portable iPad. This solution controls lighting, displays, local streaming feeds, and can even route the facility's video studio feeds to displays throughout the building.

ABOUT CASAPLEX

Casaplex was founded in 2004 by Derek Goldstein and Nelson Garcia. Since that time, we have carefully curated a platform comprised of a distinct philosophy, product line, group of processes, and team of personnel, to serve as our foundation. Core values of community, integrity, and innovation guide our company mission of enhancing how people live, work, and play through the innovative use of technology.
